Zyrion Takes Over Support for Network General Helix Customers

Sunnyvale, California – July 28, 2008 – Zyrion today announced that it has taken over support for all Helix products that are currently in use by former Fidelia and Network General customers. Zyrion will deliver the same level of support for Helix products that has been historically delivered to the customer base.

“We look forward to continuing to service the needs of the businesses that are using Helix today,” said Zyrion’s Founder and President, Vikas Aggarwal. “As the founders of the original company that developed Helix and NetVigil, the Zyrion team possesses a detailed understanding of Helix and will be able to deliver to our clients the required support for their existing solution, and more importantly, provide a migration path for enhanced capabilities available in our new Traverse offering.”

All correspondence regarding support on Helix products should be directed to Zyrion. Zyrion can be contacted at:
